Fund Commentary

Free Spirit's income share price increased by 5.02% in April, rising from 171.4p at 31 March to 180.01p on 30 April, against the 3.99% rise in the wider UK market. It was a broad advance for the Fund, with only one significant faller (Tristel -10.2%). Our big gainers were Craneware (+26.6% without news flow), Tatton Asset Management (+20.4%), Treatt (+17.6%) and Eleco (+15.3%) - all three on strong trading updates – and Dotdigital (+12.6%) and Diploma (+10.6%), both without news flow. Six companies went ex-dividend. We deployed £7.4m of cash into a selection of existing holdings and, with net inflows of £4.9m, this reduced cash from 13.9% to 9.9% by month end.

Tristel provided insight into the extent to which non-Covid related medical procedures at hospitals have been side-lined during the pandemic. Sales of its surface disinfection products are running 47% higher than last year, but it expects total sales for the current year to be flat because of the contraction in sales of decontamination products for examination devices such as ultrasound probes. This is reflected in waiting lists affecting hundreds of thousands of patients, notably in ENT, ophthalmology and urology, although it does also point to a recovery in demand as and when hospitals get back to normal. Meanwhile, Tristel is increasing expenditure on obtaining regulatory approval to access the US market.

XP Power, the power converter business in which we first acquired a holding last month, reported a good start to the year, with order intake 7% ahead on a constant currency basis. It too reported a decrease in healthcare orders compared with the exceptional demand for ventilators a year ago. Orders were driven by semiconductor manufacturing equipment and industrial technology customers. The outlook remains strong here, with semiconductor chip shortages driving very significant new investment in chip manufacturing capacity, notably by TSMC and Intel.

The market capitalisation of Dotdigital, which has been in the Fund since August 2018, moved above £500m for the first time and that of Eleco moved above £100m, leaving us with no sub £100m 'micro-caps.' The dispersion of companies by size is currently quite evenly split with six capitalised above £5bn, six between £1bn and £5bn, seven between £500m and £1bn and seven between £100m and £500m.
